

„Measuring What Works“

Workshop on methods of Monitoring & Evaluation

19th -21st of October

ESG, Bonn

Weltweit –
Gesellschaft zur Förderung lokaler Initiativen e.V.

Whether or not a development project has a desirable impact should always be measured in an unbiased and objective way. It improves the project, it can teach others a lesson and it facilitates the decision of donors whether they should invest in this project. Over the course of 50 years of development aid the international community has come up with many different M&E guidelines of which we will learn in this workshop the most relevant and most practical ones that we can use for our own projects.

Who we are

The workshop is hosted by WELTWEIT E.V. that supports overseas students to plan and conduct development projects in their home countries together with local initiatives. The evaluation of a project usually stands at the end of the management cycle but to know which rules and tools to apply is a precondition to intelligently plan a project in the beginning.

Instructors

Dr. Meik Nowak

Gustav Stresemann Institut, Bonn

Sabine Wege

Essen & Philipps-Universität Marburg

Both have many years of M&E experience working for international organisations and as independent consultants.

Dorothy Estrada

University of Tampa & Stuttgart

Dr. Stephen Wagner

Redelandschaften.de, formerly Universität Bonn

One additional guest lecturer from GIZ/CIM is requested.

Aim of this workshop

- a) to make you understand the concept of M&E and how it is done effectively
- b) to provide you with the knowledge of practical M&E methods and make you feel ready to walk the first steps evaluating micro-projects yourself according to an international recognized standard
- c) to prepare you to better plan and initiate your own projects
